

Data science, computational creativity and digital humanities

Hannu Toivonen, Professor of Computer Science (and Director of the MSc programme on Data Science),
University of Helsinki

Data science and digital humanities are connected in several ways. In this talk I will give two examples: a research proposal for creative data science in digital history, and collaboration in education at University of Helsinki.